

My name is Nshuti Jonathan, I am 20 years old, Kigali Rwanda is my place of residence

I am a mature, positive and hardworking individual, who always strives to achieve the highest possible standard, create viable community development, at any given task in developing innovation mindsets for community in society. I possess excellent communication skills and I have the ability and experience to relate to a wide range of people. I enjoy learning new specifically in technology .I'm quick learner, I can work very well under pressure. I am able to identify a problem and find out the way to solve it using power of Technology to handle people's challenges . My daily passion is about community development through creating positive impacts and taking action to sustainable development goals, saving community and creating something out of nothing for sake of development. I do have optimistic attitude and i am able to work with NGOs, government and other interested institutions to develop the community in country and around the globe. My target is To work in a challenging and creative environment in order to utilize my knowledge as software developer and effectively contribute to the growth of the organization and my society. i am worth and I have ambitions that you might be seeking .I believe to be also an IT consultant ,a creative and tech enthusiast, i am also undertaking my certification in software development at different colleges and innovation hubs. in my spare time, as Everyday is a good day to learn ,I improve my skills through trainings, tech gatherings and networking. some of the things that i am passionate about is coding, IT based research, art, events management and travelling those are the things that keep my blood circulating.